Atlantic Electropoise: Gontlemen— or the past five years my wife has been a sufferer from dyspoyds. So completely did the disease make a wreck of her former self that life was almost despaired of. Her nervous system was almost entirely destroyed, and the slightest noise would throw her into a nervous speam, which would last for hours. Medical skill failed to bring any relief.

Through the recommendation of an eminent divine we were induced to try the Elect opoise. After a persistent use of the instrument, the effect has been wonderful. Her nervous system has been restored to the almost normal condition; her digestion is wonderfully improved; she is raddly gaining in fiesh; and, upon the whole, is making a rapid recovery, which speaks volumes for the wenderful carative powers of the Electropoise, as her case was considered housies. If any are skeptical on the subject, let them try the Electropoise, and its wonderful powers will quickly dispois and its wonderful powers will quickly dispois all dept. Yours truly, WM PR-PST.

Driven to Death by Despair.

The following ead story comes from the village of Estrella, in Antiquoia, Colombia. A poor widow with two children, Laurs by name, lived open the outskirts of the place. Her husband had been dead but two menths when one day she found herself without means to satisfy her little ones' cries for bread. The last cent in the house had been spent. Dressing the children and calling in the servant girl, who had lived as one of the family, she prepared to spend the day in the woods, but instead of edibles, placed in the dinner basket a small flack, a rope and a picture of her late husband. Io a beautiful grove, nearly a mile out, they stopped at about 9 o'clock. The plcture was tacked against a giant oak, the children were set down in front of it and told to keep were set down in front of it and told to keep their eyes on their father's picture until their mother returned. The servant was instructed to give them a bit of the liquor which the flask contained to quiet them. An hour later, alarmed at the long delay of her mistress the servant want to look for her. Poor Laura was found only a few yards away, where she hanged herself to a tree, quite dead. Frightsued half to death, the servant ran away describes the children, the smallest of which, but a year old, had already drank from the flask, which was deadly poison. Three days afterwards the girl reached the villare in a half crazy condition, and related the terrible tale to her own relatives. A party was made up and went at one to the place she indicated. The mother's bedy was found still suspended by the rope, half eaten by vultures; the youngest child, with its father's picture in its hand, dead and its body covered over with worms, but the oldest child, though a mest diligent search was made, could not be found anywhere. was made, could not be found anywhere.

damages in a suit against Russell Sage for using him as a shield to save himself when Narcross exploded the bomb in Sage's office on December 4. The suit will be based upon the allegation that Eage deliberately held Laidlaw between himself and the mensoing dynamiter with the result that Sage's life was saved at the expense of terrible injuries to Laidiaw. Mr. Laidiaw is still an inmate of St. Vincent's hospital, and it will be weeks before he can leave for home. In an interview with Mr. Laidlaw recently he sa d: "No one who knows Mr. Sage can doubt that he deliberately drew me in front of him. My mind is perfectly clear on that point, because being unconscious of danger, I was not excited and remember distinctly the occurrence before the explosion."
